

Message by President PSH for Inaugural Issue

Welcome to the inaugural issue of Journal of Hematology and stem cell Research. This recently launched open access and peer-reviewed journal is dedicated to the field of hematology, transfusion medicine and cellular therapies. Launched by the Pakistan Society of Haematology, JHSCR aims to provide international forum for researchers to publish articles on biology, diagnosis, and management of hematological diseases and stem cell therapies.

I would like to thank and extend my deepest gratitude to members of the editorial board especially Professor Khalid Hassan, Professor Nadir Ali, and Professor Nadeem Ikram, reviewers, publishers and contributing authors for creating first issue.

Journal of Hematology and stem cell Research publishes articles related to hematology like diseases of hemoglobin, hemostasis, leukemias, lymphoproliferative and plasma cell disorders, transfusion medicine, stem cell transplantation and other cellular therapies. The journal focuses on the latest basic and clinical research on disease biology, treatment, prognosis and prevention. This is indeed an exciting time for Journal of Hematology and Stem Cell Research. The journal will allow rapid publication of manuscripts after rigorous peer review, free of charge to the authors and open access, thus facilitating widespread dissemination and impact. Future special issues will include thematic focus on original research as well as reviews, case reports and editorials by celebrities in the field. We look forward in helping advance the field of hematology, transfusion medicine and stem cell therapy by providing a leading medium for research publication.
